Loading Georeferenced PDFs:

These PDFs of Austin are georeferenced, meaning that they have spatial coordinates embedded in the actual pdf document. You can load these documents on a GPS enabled smart device and find where you are on the map. The following directions are for an iPhone or iPad, but similar applications exist for Android devices as well.

1. On your iPhone or iPad navigate to the iTunes store and download the free app called “PDF Maps” by Avenza. This app reads georeferenced pdfs and finds your location on them.
2. There are two ways to load the pdf into the app. The first way is through the regular Mail app. Email the pdf to yourself (or get someone to email it to you) and on your device open up the Mail app. Navigate to the message and click on the pdf attachment to download it. Once it’s downloaded click on it to open the attachment and then tap the arrow in the top right hand corner. This brings up the save menu and one of the choices should be “Open in PDF Maps”. Click that choice and it will automatically start bringing into the app. The other way to bring the pdf into the app is to open the app and on the main page click on the plus sign in the top right hand corner. It will bring up the menu on various ways to import a map. The bottom choice should be “From the web”. Type in the exact web address of the pdf and it should begin to download it.
3. Once you have your pdf loaded into the app, tap on it to open. It should open on the first page, down at the bottom; you can tap the option to make sure your GPS is turned on. If you are not physically present in the map page area it will say “Not on map”. You can press the wrench on the bottom right to play around with various tools and options. And you can add your own place marks and features.
